

MASTER OF SOCIAL WORK : ASAP (ADVANCED STANDING)

COMMITTED TO SOCIAL CHANGE FOR ALL.

Students who enroll in Capital's Master of Social Work program will be able to:

- Operationalize ethics in practice and program evaluation including inquiry, problem conceptualization, research, and application toward social, racial, economic, and environmental justice.
- Identify intersectionality from historical and contemporary lenses and the relevance to practice and program development, while supporting advocacy for social justice related to oppression, racism (past and present), human rights, economic rights, and environmental justice.
- Gain knowledge of inequalities, poverty, marginalization, racism, privilege, and oppressive systems while engaging in anti-racist practices that advance self-reflection, human rights, and social justice.
- Apply data-driven results to improve and inform policy, practice, and programs using ethical, culturally sensitive, anti-racist quantitative and qualitative platforms.
- Scrutinize, identify, create, and advocate for access to anti-oppressive, anti-racist, pro-human rights social policies at the micro, mezzo, and macro levels of practice.
